Purpose of this summary

This plain-language summary is intended for readers consulting the national SDG platform who wish to understand the legal foundation on which indicator 8.10.2 (account ownership) is reported. It is not a substitute for the full text of the ordinance, which remains the authoritative source.

Scope

The ordinance establishes the supervisory regime for credit institutions operating in Curaçao. It defines which entities require a licence, the prudential conditions for obtaining and retaining that licence, and the powers of the Central Bank as supervisor.

Key provisions relevant to financial inclusion

- Licensing. Only licensed institutions may accept deposits from the public or extend credit on a commercial basis.
- Prudential standards. Minimum capital, liquidity, and governance requirements apply to all licensed institutions, with proportionality for smaller providers.
- Consumer protection. Licensed institutions are required to publish fees, provide written terms, and operate a complaints procedure accessible to all account holders.
- Anti-money-laundering. Customer due-diligence obligations apply to account opening, with simplified procedures available for low-risk categories to support inclusion.

Relevance to indicator 8.10.2

Indicator 8.10.2 measures the proportion of adults aged 15 and older with an account at a regulated financial institution or with a mobile-money-service provider. The institutions covered by this ordinance constitute the denominator of “regulated financial institutions” for that indicator in Curaçao. Mobile-money providers, where licensed, are reported separately.

Where to find the full text

The current consolidated text of the ordinance is maintained by the Ministry of General Affairs and is available through the national legislation portal. A link to the authoritative source will replace this paragraph in the published version of this summary.
